WIN HONOR AND OPPORTUNITY

Fifty honor boy scouts, five from each of the ten eastern states, made their bow to the public at the opening on September 17 of the great eastern states exposition at Sprinfield, Mass., where every afternoon and evening during the week they demonstrated scouting to the visitors. The demonstrations took place on the fair grounds in the scout encampment which is known as the Mohawk Indian village, a replica of the camping grounds of the famous Indians of this tribe, which was constructed entirely by the scouts. These 50 particular boys were selected because of their high record in a contest this summer. competed in by hundreds of scouts, for the privilege of appearing at the exposition.

These 50 boy scouts won their way to a great opportunity as well as honor, for at the exposition they had the occasion to gain more valuable information than many a grown person has gathered in all of his life. And this is how they did It;

Every morning the boys had leisure time, but in accordance with the tenets of scouting, organization is just as necessary for leisure time as for busy time, to gain the most fruitful results, and so the scouts went to school! Not an every-day school, with reading and writing and arithmetic, but a school where the great exhibition was the text book, and all the experts in it the teachers. There were no lectures or examinations; the boys learned by observation and asking questions.

First of all, the educational departs ment placed the wonders of its great exhibit under the inspection of the

Then the Junior Achievement .village was the school room. Here, over 200 skilled boys and girls from 58 cities throughout the eastern states gave afternoon and evening demonstrations to the public of various industries, commerce, trades, vocational training, as far as boys and girls can participate. In the mornings, however, they placed themselves at the service of the scouts, demonstrating the same things that were later shown to the public. This group of boys and girls had much to tell and teach about poultry raising, bee keeping, food canning, dressmaking and other activities.

Camp Vail then extended its welcome. This camp belongs to the farm boys and girls, who also devoted their mornings to the scouts in explaining activities that are peculiarly those of the farm, and apparatus that daily saves work in the rural home. The care of cattle and sheep was included in their program. These boys and girls have won individual recognition of their work from the Junior committee tween farm houses, it was too difficult to organize group work for this honor. Then to the "Baby Beef Exhibit," chusetts had answers ready for every question that was asked about the logging and fishing industries. Vermont made and just how the grapite is cut. ing, lumber and game fishing. New Hampshire imparted to the scouts the secret of growing rosy and juicy apples and told them the reason why its, dairy products have become so tation work. From Rhede Island the scouts learned how textiles are made and how to judge the various kinds. Connecticut explained its industries and emphasized its agricultural products. New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware had much to crowd into their mornings with the scouts regarding their respective manufacturers, agricultural and education-

The livestock show, with its blooded stock assembled from everywhere in the United States, had a special attraction for the boys.

Then the farm mechanics. Scouts had an opportunity at this section of the fair for keen observation which they could follow up by scout ingenulty, when they reached home.

Industries in the cities were not overlooked. Candy making, for instance, was explained to the scouts, and one large candy company gave an exclusive and satisfying demonstration for the boys. The making of jewelry, of heating plants, of various types of automobiles, and many other articles.

And then the horse show! Owners, exper's, jockeys were there, glad to show selected horses to the scouts and to tidl how the horses are trained for racing and how they are brought to the height of perfection necessary to win prizes for their owners. The slogan of the junior work committee of the exposition in getting together this honor band of scouts was "As fine an exhibit of boys as of cat-

KINGS PRAIRIE SCHOOL NOTES

The Christmas program for the occasion held on Friday evening, December 22, was approved by many who attended. The school promises a Mrs. Albion Erickson and son Orris better one to be held later. Two days' her practice, that is two quarter days' practice, constituted the time given to Luther Smith of East Purdy vis /3d the preparation. The basket ball drill Christmas with his grandparents Mr. was met with approval by the smaller visitors especially.

The Regulars matched a game with the Kings Prairie young people and A. S. Thomas' to see Uncle Wesley won a decided victory, December 26, the score being 36 to 3 in favor of the Regulars. The line-up was as follows: forward, Fred Weber; center, Clar-Elby Calton, Ethel Ball and Joe ence Weber; forward Loraine Ennes; Potter were in Verona on business guard, Ethel Stribling; guard, Mabel Stribling. All of the Regulars played with the exception of Phariss, who visited with his brother Wesley Riddle was ill with cold. McCoy played center and played a fast game until

The Purple and Gold hopes to wave Claud Beymer had business at town in the midst of vistory through the entire season. This is the second game the Regulars have won this season. The entire team seems to be improving since regulation began. There is quite a difference in playing basket ball and in playing a rough game, Basket ball is a science, and they who ascend the heights of fame along that line must learn to be honest and courteous and have the necessary qualifications for such work The Regulars feel that they are not only growing stronger physically, brt are cultivating the better qualities that go to make up a man, which, of course, is the ultimate aim of these OF UNCLAIMED FREIGHT young players. They are making war Earl King, Malden, Mo., and R. F. and ask their elders with whom they on bad English, nicknames and slang, Whitlock, Monett, Mo., are hereby come in contact, to talk respectably
